

Rights to Modify and Erase Personal Data Policy

<https://www.projectmanager.com/legal>

Individuals in the European Economic Area, the United Kingdom and other global regions have certain statutory rights in relation to personal data. Subject to any exceptions provided by law, you as a user may delete your personal data or request deletion of your personal data at any time.

At any time, the user may update or delete their personal information from within the Projectmanager.com service by visiting the account settings page or by emailing support@projectmanager.com. ProjectManager.com will archive the data that a user requests to be deleted for 30 days, then permanently delete it. If a user requests modification or deletion of their data by contacting support, then they will be subject to an identity verification process for security purposes before ProjectManager moves forward with the deletion process.

If you are a workspace owner, and request deletion, your subscription will be cancelled, and workspaces deleted. If you are a member of workspace that you do not own, then your personal data will be removed, but the subscription will remain active.

ProjectManager.com maintains a list of data sub processors on <https://trust.projectmanager.com/>. After modification or deletion of a user's ProjectManager.com account, our customer support team will work with each sub-processor as necessary to update or delete the applicable data stored by each sub processor and designate your email address for no contact until the email address is deleted.
